GOV. HOFFMAN LAUNCHES NEW KIDNAP SEARCH

Believes Others Involved in Abduction and Murder of Lindbergh's Child

DETAILS KEPT SECRET

Executive Seeks Answers to Many Questions Arising
Since Bruno's Trial

[Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press.]
TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 18.—Gov.
Hoffman intensified today his search for other persons besides Bruno Richard Hauptmann who might have been involved in the kidnap-killing of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Details of the search were kept secret, the governor having announced that in due course he would give his reasons for doubting that any one man would have committed the crime.

Possibly the threat of death from which Hauptmann was snatched by reprieve last night, sounded in the ears of the man who saved him.

"Impeachment proceedings levied against me," Hoffman said in defending his granting of a reprieve.

Much mail has come to the 39-year-old executive's desk, especially since his visit to Hauptmann's cell last October. All principals in the case have received threatening and crank letters at one time or another.

Impeachment Unlikely
The governor's office gave no details, however, of threats other than impeachment.

Hoffman's political foes declined to discuss the possibility of impeachment proceedings. They realized that an impeachment attempt would founder on the rocks of Republican majorities in both branches of the state legislature.
The governor is a Republican.

Although Hoffman announced his intention to order the state police to "continue their search for any other person or persons involved in the crime," no such order had been issued today, as far as could be learned.

Among reports current was one that police of several mid-western cities had been asked to be on the watch for a suspect, not identified.
Another said New York police were on the trail of a woman believed to have been an accomplice in the crime.

Questions in Case
The investigation of the governor, who said that he never has expressed an opinion on the guilt or innocence of Hauptmann, sought to answer these questions:
Could this crime have been committed by any one man?
Was Hauptmann in the Lindbergh nursery the night of the crime?

What part did passion and prejudice play in his conviction?
Were some of the state's chief witnesses untruthful and mentally incompetent?

Were law enforcement agencies over-eager to close the books on a great crime mystery?
Officials concerned with investigation of the kidnapping and the prosecution of Hauptmann felt that all questions raised by Hoffman had been answered in the Flemming trial which resulted in the death penalty for Hauptmann.

SIX LIQUOR AGENCIES IN COUNTY TO CLOSE

Stores are Maintained in Liverpool and Salem

In keeping with a ruling by Attorney General John W. Bricker, holding that only one store was permitted by law to every 40,000 population, six liquor agencies will be closed in Columbiana county.
States stores will be maintained
here and at Salem, however.

Agencies at Wellsville, Salineville and Leetonia have already been closed, while licenses will be revoked for others located in East End, Lisbon and East Palestine at an early date, the managers were advised.

The stock from the Wellsville and Salineville agencies was moved to the West Fifth street store and that of the Leetonia place taken to Salem.

The store here was the first established in the county, having been placed in operation under the direction of Millard E. Blythe after repeal of prohibition two years ago.
Forward, while the agencies have been doing business about a year.

Rudyard Kipling, Britain's Famed Poet-Imperialist, Stricken At 70

RUDYARD KIPLING
Fiction Ends in Grim Reality

Man Who Set Empire Afire With Patriotism Dies of Emergency Operation

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 18. — Rudyard Kipling, Great Britain's famous poet-imperialist, died early today in the Middlesex hospital at the age of 70, sending the empire he set afire with patriotism into widespread mourning.
His body lay later in the day in the same simple bed in a private hospital room which he had occupied since he underwent an emergency operation Monday for a perforated stomach ulcer.

There it was expected to remain until preliminary interment arrangements could be made by Mrs.
Kipling.

From all sides came tributes to the memory of the poet and novelist, who until his sudden illness had lived for many years in virtual retirement in the quiet village of Burwash, on the age-old Sussex Downs.

"One of the most forcible minds of our time has ceased its work," said the Times.

Praised in Press
"Posterity, whatever it may have to say about his opinions, can never fail to laud that achievement in self expression as one of the most singular in English literature and English thought."

"As the greatest and most beloved fixture of contemporary English literature, his fame is accrued," said the Daily Mail. "He taught England the meaning of empire, and the empire the meaning of England."

For four days, since he was operated on Monday morning, only Kipling's flashing eyes gave evidence of his will to live.

Just before dawn Friday he sank into unconsciousness. Only in the last hours did he seem to recognize his family.

His wife, American born, and his daughter were present at the end,
as was his surgeon, Dr. A. E.
Webb-Johnson.

Utterly exhausted for more than 48 hours, he succumbed at 12:10
a. m. (7:10 p. m. Friday East Liverpool time) to complications arising from his operation.

Mrs. Kipling and her married daughter, worn by grief and their long vigil, retired soon afterward, almost in a state of collapse.

Stricken in London
Little more than a week before, he accompanied his wife, Kipling had left his Burwash home, seemingly in good health, for a short stay in London before departing for his usual holiday on the French Riviera.

He had observed his 70th birthday anniversary quietly at Burwash; then, too, apparently in strong health.

He was stricken last Sunday night at Brown's hotel and hastened to the private Woolavington wing of the Middlesex hospital in London's central "old soho" district for the operation from which he at first rallied.

There are few cases in literary history stranger than the career of Rudyard Kipling who achieved immortality with his tales of India.

Kipling sky-rocketed to world fame before he was 30 years old.
At the age of 36 he climaxed and virtually ended his career when he published his last first-rate work, the classic story of "Kim." Although Kipling continued writing after that time, his efforts lacked the fire and quality which distin-

CHARLES LANDFRIED, 79, DIES FROM FALL

Funeral Rites Here Monday
For Veteran Blacksmith

Charles Landfried, 79, blacksmith here for more than 30 years and active in East End civil affairs, died in the City hospital Friday at 9:55 p. m. as the result of a frac-
when he fell in Pennsylvania avenue.

Born in Ripley, W. Va., Dec. 4, 1856, Mr. Landfried came to East Liverpool in 1900 as superintendent for the East Liverpool-Chester bridge following his appointment by the receiver, Judge Jackson of Parkersburg. When the bridge was sold to the traction company, Mr.
Landfried opened a blacksmith shop in Pennsylvania avenue, near Boyce street, in which he was active until injured.

He was a member of the F. and A. Masons and the Odd Fellows lodge at Ravenswood and also attended the Pennsylvania avenue Methodist Episcopal church. In politics he was a Republican.

He is survived by one daughter,
Mrs. Lulu Kidder of Canonsburg, Pa.; two sons, Harold and William Landfried of East Liverpool; three brothers, James, John and Adam Landfried, and two sisters, Mrs.
Jeff Carney and Mrs. Lottie Boyce, all of Ripley, W. Va., and 12 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the Kelly funeral home in Pennsylvania avenue Monday at 2 p. m., in charge of Rev. E. Reed, pastor of Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, assisted by Rev.
A. H. Kelley, of the Oakland Free Methodist church. Burial will be made in the United Presbyterian cemetery at Calcutta.

Friends are requested to call at the Kelly funeral home Saturday night and Sunday.

AUDITOR WARNS NO CITY FUNDS TO MEET BILLS

Financial Dilemma Will Be Presented to Councilmen
At Monday Session

2 DEPARTMENTS PAID

Solicitor Asks for Written Requests for Opinions on Matters of Law Here

City council Monday night is expected to consider the financial dilemma which probably will preclude payment of salaries of elective and appointive officials, including patrolmen, firemen and incinerator employees, now three and one-half months in arrears, until April 1 or later.

Auditor S. J. Overdorff said today no funds, except the municipality's share of distributions of retail sales and liquor sales taxes, will be available until a settlement is made of the December installment of real estate taxes, expected not to be payable until late in April.

Two Departments Are Paid
Two departments, however, will not be affected. They are the waterworks and street division, which are supported by water rents and gasoline and automobile taxes.

Employees of the two divisions received 15-day warrants Friday, 33 workers in the water department being paid $1,567.75, while 25 street employees were given $846.60.

"No funds for other salaries will be available, unless we receive sales tax and liquor revenue apportionments," commented the auditor.

Service-Safety Director E. B.
Laughlin compiled a list of the municipality's unpaid bills, including about $62,000 due the Ohio
Power Co. for street lights, $20,- 000 in delinquent salaries and other accounts.

The situation is expected to be outlined to councilmen in an effort to find a solution of the problem.

No legislation, however, had been asked to noon today for presentation at Monday night's meeting. It is understood a delegation of East End residents will appeal to the municipal legislators to ask the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. to establish flasher lights at the Bel-leek street, Myrtle avenue and "Little England" crossings to aid in preventing accidents. The three points have been scenes of fatalities during the last few years.

Written Requests for Opinions Solicitor G. Jay Clark, it was learned, has advised Mayor O.
Greenwalt, Director Laughlin and heads of other municipal departments that requests for opinions concerning the law in any matter should be submitted in writing.

The solicitor's letter follows:
"As solicitor of the city of East Liverpool, I desire to call your attention to the following section of the general code of Ohio, to wit:
"Sec. 4309. When an officer of the corporation entertains doubts concerning the law and desires the opinion of the solicitor, he shall clearly state to the solicitor in writing the question upon which the opinion is desired, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the solicitor, within reasonable time, to reply orally or in writing to such inquiry.
The right here conferred upon officers shall extend to the council, and to each board provided for in this title."

"Now in view of the above section of the general code of Ohio it will be the policy of the city solicitor, at all times, to render opinion
when and if called upon but only in the manner provided by the law as hereinabove set forth. This rule of law being followed will prevent misunderstanding arising concerning the law in any matter before any officer in his official capacity."

HULL STARTS ACTION AGAINST GUN MAKERS

Munitions Firms Cited for Failing to Register

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary Hull announced today he had submitted to Attorney General Cummings for appropriate action the names of more than a score of munition manufacturing companies which have failed to register with the state department in compliance with the neutrality act.

The names and the exact number of the firms involved were not made known, although Secretary Hull said at his press conference that there were 20 to 30 of them.

Mostly, he said, they are small companies although among them are one or two of some importance.

Under the neutrality statute all firms and individuals dealing in munitions, ammunition and implements of war were required to register with the state department not later than 29, 1935.

On Dec. 3, Secretary Hull asserted that some companies still had failed to register and that he hoped it would not be necessary to take the action announced today.

DAVEY WILL END NEW DEAL FEUD

Governor Will Head Harmony Delegation to Capital; Offers Olive Branch

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—Gov. Martin L. Davey, critical of federal relief policies but insistent he has no quarrel with the national administration, made an overture today to assure President Roosevelt of a united party in Ohio.

A Democratic state headquarters announcement said he and State Chairman Francis W. Poulson would lead a "harmony delegation" to Washington Wednesday "to mark the formal opening of a vigorous, united, and successful campaign in Ohio."

Expected to meet with the delegation, Poulson said, is U. S. Sen.
Robert J. Bulkley, an administration supporter and target of a bitter barrage of criticism from Davey when the governor announced his candidacy for reelection in Kent
Nov. 29.

Buckley declined comment in Washington.

Poulson said Gov. and Mrs.
Davey would be dinner guests at the White House next Thursday evening.

Thirty members of the state central and executive committees and chairman of larger county committees will leave here in a special car next Wednesday.

In Washington, Poulson said,
they will confer with the President and National Democratic Chairman
James A. Farley.

In addition to Bulkley, Sen. Vic Donahue and Undersecretary of the Interior Charles West, Poulson said, probably will join.

Donahue said he knew nothing of the plan except that the governor's office telephoned to ask if Davey could see him next week.

"Naturally," Donahue said, "I said yes."

Democratic leaders throughout the state, Poulson said, "have suggested this trip in order that they may tell official Washington the truth about the political situation in Ohio."

This goodwill tour will correlate the national and state campaigns and unite us for the attack on our common opponent.

"Members of the state committee, solidly behind the President and Gov. Davey, expect this trip to mark the formal opening of a vigorous, united, and successful campaign in Ohio."

C. V. Beatty, T. J. Duffy
To Make Capital Trip

C. V. Beatty of East Liverpool, chairman of the Columbiana county Democratic central committee, and Thomas J. Duffy of Columbus, former East Liverpool resident, will be among the members of the Ohio "harmony delegation" which will go to Washington Wednesday to confer with President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley.

Mr. Beatty was out of the city today, but business associates said he planned to visit the national capital.

Mr. Duffy, one-time candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and long active in state politics, visited here last week. He formerly was secretary and later president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potteries and also served as a member of the state industrial commission. He is now an attorney in Columbus.

John F. Nolan of Steubenville, chairman of the Jefferson county Democratic organization, who is well known in Columbiana county,
also will be a member of the group which will accompany Gov. Martin
L. Davey and State Chairman
Francis W. Poulson.

ENGLISH KING, SERIOUSLY ILL, GROWS WORSE

Ruler Shows New Symptoms Of Heart Attack After Suffering From Cold

SPECIALISTS CALLED

Anxiety Increases Throughout World for Life of Popular Monarch

By The Associated Press.
SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Jan. 18.—
Seventy-year-old King George V, ill of a bronchial ailment, suffered further symptoms of a heart attack this afternoon, increasing anxiety over his condition.

A bulletin posted at the gate of Sandringham house, the royal residence, at 3:30 said:
"His majesty the king has had some hours of restful sleep."
"The cardiac weakness and embarrassment of circulation has slightly increased and give cause for anxiety."

A typed sheet of note paper bearing the royal crest carried the announcement to hundreds of passersby who were gathered outside the gates.

Secretary Called
Just before the posting of the bulletin, Lord Wigram, the king's private secretary, arrived from London.

Earlier in the day one of England's most noted heart specialists was summoned from London to the bedside of the monarch, to join the three physicians already in attendance.

A short time after the specialist,
Sir Maurice A. Cassidy, left London by train, it was learned authoritatively that oxygen was administered to the sovereign during the night.

It was hastily explained, however,
that oxygen is a modern treatment for a catarrhal condition, such as that suffered by his majesty, and has been administered to the king several times during recent years in fighting that ailment.

Statements Guarded
The bronchial catarrh was complicated by more serious signs of cardiac weakness, which even the guarded language of the king's physicians conceded was causing
"some disquiet."

After disclosing this development in a bulletin last night, the physicians said today in a statement dated 10:15 a. m. (5:15 a. m. East Liverpool time):
"The anxiety expressed in the bulletin of last night persists."

"Oxygen was brought to Sandringham house, the royal country estate and the king's favorite palace, yesterday by Lord Dawson of Penn, who with two others of the ruler's physicians spent the night in the palace, ready for instant call."

While the faithful Nurse Black, who was with King George all through his serious illness of 1928 and 1929 remained near his bedside, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Frederick Stanley Hewitt and Sir Frederick J. Williams stayed in rooms not far away.

Williams, who lives at Sandringham, left the palace this morning but Lord Dawson and Hewitt remained, awaiting the arrival of Sir Maurice Cassidy.

A number of windows of the large, rambling old royal residence were open.

DISPUTE THREATENS WORLD WAR INQUIRY

Hot Words Flare After Nye Attacks Wilson

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Sen.
Clark (D) of Missouri was believed to be ready today for an attempt to rescue a neutrality inquiry that is foundering in a sea of Democratic indignation in the senate.

The son of the late Champ Clark, famous speaker of the house in bygone days, had indicated he would seek to speak to the senate today in the aftermath of a row that flamed to climax yesterday when Sen. Glass (D) of Virginia shouted
"coward" and "demagogue" at Sen.
Nye (R) of North Dakota.

Nye, as chairman of a senate munitions committee which is investigating World War trade and financing with a view to drastic new neutrality legislation, had charged that Woodrow Wilson "falsified" a major point of war history. Clark had backed him up to the extent of saying there were "inconsistencies" in published records and secret documents.

So widespread was the anger that Nye's charge aroused among powerful Democratic senators that there were free predictions the Nye committee's inquiry was about "all washed up," that it would get no more funds.

But Clark, when asked if the munitions investigators would change their course, said shortly:
"Why should we?"

Nye insisted documents showed that Wilson did not state facts
when he told a senate committee
he did not know until after the war that the Allies had secret treaties to repartition Europe.

Senate Puts Curb On Bonus Debate To Hasten Action

REACHES BEAUTY FINALS Expert Vote Today After Leaders See Measure
Passing Over Veto

THOMAS ASKS CHANGE

Harrison Admits Baby Bond
Plan May Bring Indirect
Inflation to Country

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Flatly declaring that the baby bond bonus payment bill will become law whether President Roosevelt vetoes
it or not, champions of the measure drove it toward an imminent senate vote today.

Administration leaders confidently predicted it would sweep to passage in the chamber before the day was out. To hasten the vote, the senate agreed that a drastic curb on debate would go into effect in mid-afternoon. Democratic chiefs who favor the bill conceded only 18 votes to the opposition, out of 90-odd expected to be cast.

Forecasters were heard that the bill, which offers cashable $50 bonds to pay off about $2,000,000
of adjusted service certificates, would gain quick concurrence by the house.

That branch passed a bill also providing for full immediate payment of the 1945 maturity value of the certificates, but omitted a method of payment. The senate bill provides that the bonds may be cashable on or after next June 15.
Speaker Byrnes has said the house was "in a humor" to accept this bill in place of its own.

Amendments Delay Vote
Three amendments stood in the way of a final senate vote today—
that of Sen. Thomas (D) of Oklahoma authorizing the President to use new currency to discharge the veterans' debt, another by Sen.
King (D) of Utah to pay only the present or cash surrender value of the certificates, and a third by Sen.
Schwellenbach (D) of Washington, providing that bonus receipts shall still be eligible for work relief.

Only the latter had a chance of adoption, administration leaders said.

In urging his amendment late yesterday, Thomas said the bond bill sponsored by Senators Harrison (D) of Mississippi; Byrne (D) of South Carolina; Steiwer (R) of Oregon and Clark (D) of Missouri,
"out-Patmans the Patman bill," the inflationary measure vetoed last session.

The Oklahoman said the coalition measure might ultimately cost the government $4,000,000,000 because of interest charges and other factors. For one thing, he contended, the government might have to borrow, under the present bill, to pay interest charges for veterans who elect to hold their baby bonds as an investment. Such veterans will receive three percent interest until 1945.

"If Uncle Sam is behind this bill," he asserted, "he ought to go over to an insane asylum until he recuperates. I'm for this bill so far as the soldiers are concerned, but I'm against it so far as the taxpayers are concerned."

Few senators listened to Thomas' speech, but a representative of Father Charles F. Coughlin sat in the gallery taking notes whenever questions were asked.

Admits Inflation
Harrison conceded there was
"indirect inflation" in his bill.
"If a billion or a half billion is cashable in, to that extent it is inflationary," he told Sen. Shipstead (FL) of Minnesota.

Harrison repeated on the floor
what he had told newspapermen previously—that the bond bill would become law "whether President Roosevelt signed it or not."

Sen. Couzens (R) of Michigan, an opponent of the measure, tried in vain to get the Mississippi to say the President had agreed to sign the bill.

Harrison agreed he had visited the White House, but said the executive had not disclosed to anyone what he would do.

"I think he can sign this bill, and I hope in good faith he will,"
he asserted.

MAYOR JOEL TAYLOR SEEKS ANOTHER TERM

Chester Republicans Will Nominate in February

Mayor Joel B. Taylor of Chester today announced his candidacy for reelection at the Republican convention which will be held there in February. The biennial election day is Thursday, March 12.

Clerk Harry Lewis, Republican, serving his first term, will also seek another term.

Councilmen Albert Kell, Farrell
Piney, Henry Oberman and Percy Willison will toss their hats into the ring for second tenures, but Joseph Davis, another councilman incumbent, is not expected to be a candidate.

The Citizen's party will also select a ticket, but no candidates have been announced.

Convention dates are expected to be set within the next week or 10 days.

VETERANS CLAIM BONUS PAYMENT WILL SPUR TRADE

Survey Reveals Servicemen Anxious to Pay Old Debts, Aid Living Standard

HOME SPENDING SEEN

Part of Money To Be Used For Autos, Clothing and Business Investment

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, say its backers, would start cash registers ringing in virtually every city, town and rural community of the nation where holders of adjusted service certificates reside.

National Commander Ray Murphy of the American Legion asserts "the payment of the certificates at this time will prime all business and industry" and that "the spread of the money will be in direct proportion to the recruiting of the army and navy in war time which as is well known was upon an even basis of distribution of population."

Old Debts

Bonus seekers are interested chiefly in paying old debts and improving living conditions for their families if a statistical study by a magazine circulating to American Legion members (the American Legion Monthly) is a true guide to "Where the Bonus Will Go."

On the basis of 42,500 replies to questionnaires sent "at random" to certificate holders, it is estimated that more than half of the eligible veterans are troubled by old debts; that virtually all of them plan to do something about acquiring or improving homes if they get the money. Their third ranking ambition is indicated to be the purchase or re-equipment of motor cars.

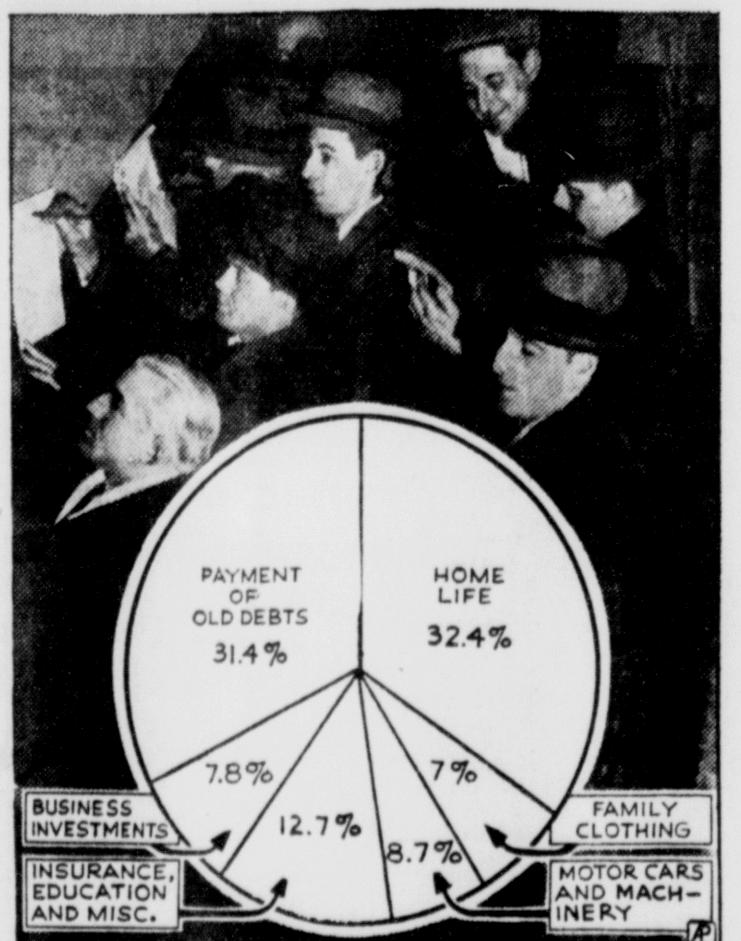

In an effort to determine how the veterans would spend their bonus money the magazine sent 25 questionnaires to each of the more than 11,000 posts of the Legion where they were distributed at random to members who filled them out.

The envelopes containing the questionnaires were turned over unopened to certified accountants by whom they were counted, audited and projected to a basis of 3,518,191 outstanding adjusted service certificates with an average net value of $565.17 each.

On this basis it is estimated merchants and retailers of the country will receive a total payment of $623,615,793.86 from 1,897,826 veterans on debts incurred.

While the amount of estimated payment on old debts figures at approximately one-third of the total

HOW CASH PAYMENT WILL AFFECT VETERANS

If the "united front" bill becomes a law, $2,000,000,000 will be available to veterans holding adjusted service certificates. The picture shows veterans hastily filling out applications for cash when loans on the certificates first were authorized. Below is an estimate of the American Legion Monthly on how the bonus will be spent.

bonus, replies to questionnaires indicate that to 54 percent of the bonus recipients, squaring up old debts is an important item.

Spending For Homes

The greatest bulk of the bonus money, according to this survey, will go into items related to the home life of the veterans after payment of past due obligations. It is estimated that more than 34 percent of the approximately $2,000,000,000 required to pay off the bonus will go for this purpose.

Other estimates on how the World War veterans will spend their bonus include:

For motor vehicles and accessories, 6 percent of the total.

Clothing for personal use, 2 1/2 percent.

Clothing for their families, 4 percent.

Expenditures for investment and their own business, 7 percent.

All other expenditures, including insurance, education, savings accounts and miscellaneous items, 12 percent.

With The Sick

Mrs. Merle Burson is ill at her home in Pritchard avenue, Lisbon.

Miss Annetta McClintock is quarantined to her home in Lisbon from an attack of scarlet fever.

Mrs. Herbert Grandstaff is confined to her home in Chester.

Melvin Goldsmith, of East Lincoln way, Lisbon, general manager of the National Brass and Copper Co., is convalescing.

Miss Aurella Allison of West Sixth street, who have been a patient in the City hospital, has been removed to the home of her niece, Mrs. John Paul, St. Clair avenue.

The scarlet fever quarantine will be lifted from the home of Mr. and Mrs. George White in Ray street today, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wilbur J. White, having fully recovered from the malady.

Mrs. Earl Gross of Beechwood, who underwent a major operation this week in the City hospital, is improving.

Auditor Completes County Work

LISBON, Jan. 18.—State Examiner Fred M. Preston has concluded examination of all Columbiana county records and those of the townships. He has been assigned to Youngstown by the state bureau of inspection of public officers. The cost of the examination is paid by the city and county and taxing districts.

NEW FARM BILL WILL BE RUSHED

AAA Substitute Will Become Rider on Appropriations To Speed Passage

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—With the new deal ready to put its new farm program into operation at once, senate leaders today devised a plan for speeding it through congress as a rider to an appropriation bill.

Anxious to get the plan into effect before cotton planting starts in the far southern states, administration leaders proposed to add it to the independent offices appropriation bill which passed the house yesterday.

Five major farm organizations, meeting as the national agricultural conference, went on record last night as endorsing the program to obtain production control through a system of subsidized soil conservation.

Discussion revolved today around two questions:

Will the new program survive a Supreme Court test if it is ever brought before that tribunal?

What means will be used to finance it?

Leaders are conducting a survey to see what sentiment there is in congress to bulwark farm relief and other legislation against blows from the courts.

On the second question, L. J. Taber, master of the national grange, advanced the idea of impounding all tariff receipts to obtain necessary funds without new taxation.

Sen. Pope said the proposed plan to pay benefits to farmers to diversify crops in such a way as to prevent erosion, improve fertility and keep production of major crops at a desired level probably was unconstitutional in the light of the Supreme Court's ruling on AAA.

The senator, expressing personal approval of controlled production, took the position that all possibility of the new farm program meeting AAA's fate should be removed by a law limiting the power of the courts.

2 TEACHERS NAMED TO WELLSVILLE JOBS

Supt. Daw Appoints Melvin Hettler and Doris Davis

Two new teaching appointments were made in the Wellsville public schools today by Supt. Seward E. Daw.

Melvin Hettler of Rochester, Pa., graduate of Geneva college, Beaver Falls, was named instructor of mathematics at the MacDonald building. As assistant to William B. Storer, high school athletic director, he will serve as coach at the grade school.

Miss Doris Mae Davis of Boardman, graduate of Kent State college, was chosen assistant to Miss Margaret Frischkorn, principal at the Garfield building.

The appointments will assume their places Monday, when the second semester opens.

AUTOIST FACES COURT AFTER TROLLEY CRASH

Stanley Frazier Denies Reckless Driving in Collision Here

Stanley Frazier of Waverly street, Beechwood, who pleaded not guilty to a reckless driving charge when arraigned before Municipal Judge Frank E. Grosshans today as an aftermath of a collision with the Grandview street car in St. Clair avenue, Friday at 9:30 p. m., will be given a hearing Monday at 2 p. m.

The affidavit was signed by Police Captain J. N. McFarland after Frazier's motorcar crashed into the trolley car, in charge of Operator Harvey Kirchner, while it was on a switch near the Northside fire station.

Miss Adeline Elden of East Liverpool will be given a hearing Wednesday before Judge Grosshans on a charge of failing to stop after her automobile collided with a sedan driven by Mrs. Sarah Lyons of St. Clair avenue in Fifth and Market streets, Friday afternoon.

WITNESS' STORY DRAWS ATTACK

Westwood Counsel Questions Woman for Third Time in Murder Trial

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18.—The state stepped aside today long enough to allow James J. Westwood's counsel to open a third attack on the testimony of the woman who said she saw the dapper squire flee from the scene of his wife's slaying.

Defense Attorney William H. Coleman interrupted introduction of prosecution evidence to demand the return of Mrs. Sophie Sehar, neighbor of the accused McKees Rocks justice of the peace.

Coleman has twice-examined Mrs. Sehar, who stood by her story she saw her neighbor pass out of a gate a few moments after three shots ended the life of Mrs. Martha Westwood last July.

The defense attorney said in his final cross-examination he expected to wreck the testimony of the state's star witness and then ask for an acquittal without offering defense testimony.

Assistant District Attorney Chauncey Pruger agreed to recall Mrs. Sehar and her resume testimony of experts concerning gunpowder traces they said they found on a wax mold taken of Westwood's hand the day after the shooting.

Mrs. Westwood, mother of three children, was slain by a night prowler, as she slept. There were no e-witnesses and only Mrs. Sehar and her daughter, Anna, have said they saw the 42-year-old squire near the scene.

He contends he was in a night club miles away at the time.

The chief witness concerning the wax mold was F. C. Buckmaster, Allegheny county chemist, who declared his examinations disclosed black specks in the mold were gun powder.

Buckmaster further declared the specks were identical in chemical composition with specks taken from the face of Mrs. Westwood.

Under cross-examination the chemist insisted that no other substance but gunpowder could give the same reaction as he obtained in his experiments.

County Association Elects Officers at Lisbon

LISBON, O., Jan. 18.—P. O. Raley of Elkrun township was re-elected president of the Columbiana county trustees and clerks at a dinner meeting in the American Legion home Friday at 6:30 p. m. About 80 persons attended.

Other officers include: First vice president, Joseph Heck, of Unity township; second vice president, Lawrence Baker of Elkrun township and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Helen O'Brien, re-elected. Mrs. O'Brien was also named a member of the state executive committee.

Charles Baker of Zanesville, president of the state association, and J. R. Thomas of Hayesville, a former president, discussed "Roads and Rural Taxation."

Other speakers were Benjamin Harrison of Lake county; Mrs. Rachel Davis, of Brookville township, Trumbull county, and A. L. Aiken of Ashland county, member of the state legislative committee.

The association adopted a resolution urging State Senator Emerson Campbell of St. Clairsville to support the Wilcox bill which provides for a five percent distribution of sales tax funds to the townships.

ABRAHAM GREENSPUN PLACED ON PROBATION

East Liverpool Man Faces Court on Pottery Gold Larceny Charge

Special To The Review.

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., Jan. 18.—Abraham Greenspun of East Liverpool, indicted for grand larceny in connection with the theft of $327 worth of gold and platinum from the Homer Laughlin China Co., at Newell, was placed on probation for three years by Judge J. Harold Brennan in the Hancock county circuit court here Friday.

Officials of the Newell pottery intervened in Greenspun's behalf, declaring that he had turned state's evidence in the identity of a theft ring.

The petit jury, called for next Monday to hear civil cases, will not report until Tuesday, Jan. 28. There will be no sessions of the court next week.

TRUSTEES MOVE RELIEF OFFICES

Agreement is Reached With City for Half-Day Use Of Fire Station

The Liverpool township trustees announced today that relief offices heretofore maintained in the municipal building here will be moved to the city's welfare bureau on the second floor of the Central fire station next Friday.

Under an agreement made with Service - Safety Director E. B. Laughlin, township orders for groceries, coal and medicine will be issued during the afternoon on Friday at the new location.

Trustees To Issue Orders

Trustees Otto Kimmel, D. E. Van Fossen and Louis Sanford will distribute the orders, which will be signed by Township Clerk Shelton J. Overdorf, who is also city auditor.

The plan provides for the municipality to complete its distribution at noon Friday, to avoid conflict with the township work.

Township indigent aid, financed by the state appropriation allocated by the Columbiana county commissioners, totaled $715.90 in December, compared with a municipal distribution exceeding $4,500.

Municipal officials, who issue food, coal and medicine orders totaling $577.07 Friday, said today arrangements would be made to lighten the heavy relief load at the week-end. It is expected such orders will be issued Thursday to enable suspension of activities at noon on Friday.

December Bills Total $4,500

Investigators Kenneth Shenkel, Norman Anthony and G. G. Montgomery, in charge of city distribution, today reported they had forwarded bills totaling $4,500 for December aid to County Auditor John H. Irwin, who will issue warrants against the city's share of the state appropriation.

"Many merchants have not submitted December bills, thus delaying payment," commented officials here. "We urge immediate presentation of accounts."

At Lisbon, FERA officials said December reports showed 4,805 persons on relief rolls in cities, villages and townships. These figures include 1,204 families listing 4,440 persons and 365 individuals.

The total county expenditure was $3,152.70.

QUIET SELLING DOMINATES LIST

Many Recent Stock Leaders Lack Important Support In Heavy Close

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Although the stock market did not encounter a great deal of stormy weather today, there were sufficient overhanging clouds to depress the list, as a whole.

Quiet selling predominated throughout the brief session with losses ranging from fractions to around a point or more. The close was somewhat heavy. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

While there was no unusually weak group, it was evident important support was lacking for many of the recent leaders.

Followers of the automobiles were not noticeably pleased with reports that some manufacturers have shaded production in certain instances and others are contemplating curtailment over the next two weeks.

The utilities, rails, motors, steels, and mines were backward throughout. The mining section was still under the influence of yesterday's sharp cut in the imported bar silver rate.

Among the share losers were Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem, Deere, Du Pont, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Houston Oil, Standard Oil of Cal., Cerro de Pasco, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting and Douglas Aircraft. American Telephone was resistant and many issues were about unchanged.

Top Notch's Guest

IN THE meantime Top Notch was in his General Store entertaining Sir Count Prince Nobleman Duke Lord King Rooster.

"I brought you back plenty to eat," said Top Notch.

"I need it," said Sir Count, without showing any gratitude at all.

"Aren't you pleased?" asked Top Notch.

"It's no more than I deserve. Why should I bother to make an effort? Only ordinary roosters have to do that. I believe in letting the world look after me."

"Am I the world?" asked Top Notch.

"For the moment you are."

"Won't you tell me really who you are and from where you came?"

"I've told you," said Sir Count. "Not enough," said Top Notch, as he started to eat some seeds.

"There, there," said Sir Count, "don't eat those. They will do me for breakfast and lunch tomorrow."

"But I need something to eat."

"My dear young rooster," said Sir Count, "you are the one who has seeds—therefore you should share them with me as I have none."

"That's not fair!" cackled Top Notch. "I got them for you, and it was Willy Nilly who gave them to me. It's not as though you were sharing with me—you merely want me to share with you."

"I'd share with you if I could," said Sir Count sadly, and Top Notch was ashamed of his selfishness, and did not touch any more seeds.

"But I can't stay away from Willy Nilly's all this time," Top Notch protested. "Let me bring him here to see you."

"No, no!" shrieked Sir Count.

Monday—"Willy Nilly's visit."

RUDYARD KIPLING, 70, BRITISH POET, DIES

guished those early works.

Kipling was born in Bombay, India, on Dec. 30, 1865, the son of John L. Kipling, an art teacher in Bombay schools, and Alice MacDonald Kipling, a woman of unusual wit and ability.

At the age of five young Kipling returned to England for his schooling. During his term at United Services college at Westward Ho, Devonshire, Kipling gave first indication of his literary talent, writing considerable prose and poetry.

Kipling Famous at 25

Returning to India, he accepted a post on the editorial staff of the Civil and Military Gazette at Lahore. During his connection with that publication (1882-87) Kipling won his first literary fame with his short stories and sketches of life in India.

These years were fruitful ones in the life of the young man who was later hailed as England's greatest contemporary man of letters. By 1890, before he was 25 years old, Kipling had established himself as a short story writer of note with such tales as "Soldiers Three," "The Phantom Rickshaw," "Wee Willie Winkle," "Plain Tales From the Hills" and "Departmental Duties."

The second period in his life started in 1892 with his marriage to the daughter of H. W. Balestier of New York. They settled in Vermont and lived there until 1896.

To their union were born two daughters, one of whom died in girlhood, and a son who was killed in the World war.

"Kim" Climaxed His Career

During this second period of his literary career, Kipling wrote the popular "Barrack Room Ballads," "The Light That Failed," the two "Jungle Books," "Captains Courageous," "The Seven Seas" and other works. By that time he was established as the leading man of letters of his age and enjoyed a phenomenal popularity throughout the world.

Publication of the classic story of "Kim" in 1901 climaxed and virtually ended his career as a first rank artist. From then on, although he was not yet 40, Kipling's work declined in vitality and freshness. His vivid style and mastery of language remained, but the vigor and inspired quality of his early poetry and prose was missing.

Possibly the greatest disappointment of Kipling's career came in 1913, when the British government failed to appoint him poet laureate, naming Robert Bridges instead. In 1907, however, he had received the Nobel prize for literature and numerous universities had given him honorary degrees.

After the World War Kipling's literary efforts and public activities diminished and he went into semi-retirement in 1926 at the age of 60, living quietly at his country home, Bateman's, in Sussex, England.

POTTS FOUND GUILTY, GIVEN PEN SENTENCE

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—Ray Potts, former Summit county sheriff, was in county jail today awaiting transfer to a federal penitentiary for conspiring to violate the U. S. internal revenue laws while in office in 1933 and 1934.

A federal jury of nine men and three women convicted Potts late yesterday after deliberating slightly more than two hours. Five associates of the former sheriff were convicted at the same time for the conspiracy and three were acquitted.

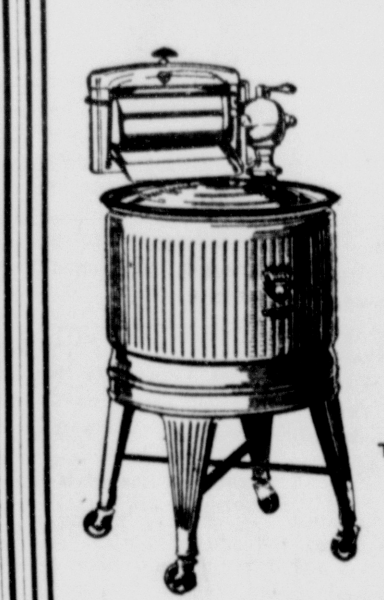

Potts was sentenced to serve two years in prison and was fined $2,500 by Judge Samuel West, who upbraided the former sheriff for corruption and said he was sorry the sentence and fine were so low. Marc Wolpaw, counsel for Potts, said no appeal would be made.

Speaking of ODD JOBS-

Ice Cream Maker

There hasn't been a real ice cream maker in Hollywood for many years, but that doesn't deter the movie prop men, who don't consider an exterior winter set well dressed unless it has ice cream. Among the ice cream makers Jack Baker ranks high. Once all ice cream was of fiber and wet plaster with mica dust sprinkled on the surface. Baker changed the system, developing several new types. Now he makes his ice cream of several layers of transparent paper, twisted and crushed into ice cream form, and then dipped in wax. Baker's ice cream has a peculiar advantage over those of other composition. Under studio lights the wax melts and drips exactly like water. Baker estimates his production of ice cream in the thousands.

Test Of Discipline

The country speaks of a constitutional issue, but attempts to define it are bound to be futile. The fact is there are several issues which concern the Constitution.

There is an issue between those who are trying to preserve the Constitution and those who would muzzle it by muzzling the Supreme Court. That really is not a constitutional issue in its current state so much as it is a supreme court issue, though the Constitution would be affected directly if the uproarers were to succeed in their shortsighted attempt to make the court ineffective.

There is another issue between those who are satisfied with the Constitution as it is and those who seek to amend it. But until the nature of the amendment or amendments is made known, that issue cannot be joined.

The real issue lies between citizens who believe the federal government should have broader authority to control industry, business and agriculture and those who believe the federal government should not be given that authority. The other issues are incidental to that one.

Thus, there are three decisions to be made. First, it must be decided whether or not the United States wants to continue to have constitutional government. Second, it must be decided whether or not the United States wants to amend the Constitution by orderly methods, if it decides previously to preserve that document. Third, it must decide whether or not the federal government should be given greater authority.

In this connection it is interesting to note a paragraph in Sen. Vic Donahey's letter to Ohio voters explaining his viewpoint on the broad question of constitutional law. Explaining that the Constitution should be revised to bring it up to date, Sen. Donahey declares, "The orderly amendment of the Constitution is the problem of most importance facing the American people."

Sen. Donahey has hit the nail on the head. No fair person denies the electorate the right to consider the question of revising the Constitution. No reasonable person, furthermore, denies that there is a real question of the need for broadened federal authority. The problem is to maintain orderly procedure in settlement of those vital questions.

Flu isn't easy to diagnose at first. Some people are just naturally grouchy and hateful.

An Old Correspondence

One painful disclosure of the senate munitions committee's investigation into events leading up to participation of the United States in the World war on the side of the Allies is the correspondence with Great Britain on the subject of neutrality.

It is not a pleasant memory, because it prods an almost forgotten conviction that had it not been for Germany's submarines British men of war would have infuriated the United States to the point of action. Perhaps that is better forgotten.

From the outbreak of the war until the United States finally entered on the side of the Allies John Bull was an extremely resolute gentleman, in contrast, was irresolute and vague.

But let no one say that John Bull was not polite in his correspondence with the American cousin who had struck it rich. The trouble was that John knew exactly what he wanted and tried to get it by the most direct method. Sam's purposes weren't so well defined.

He wanted most of all to be popular in the eyes of his British cousin. Eventually, it worked out that way and perhaps for the b. s. but, the correspondence of the period, as it appears today, suggests strongly that in the matter of diplomatic negotiation Uncle Sam was but a child. He wanted his neutrality and when he didn't get it he blamed Germany instead of Great Britain, thanks to the fact that his sympathy was with John Bull all the time.

The final test of poise is a family party where one of the in-laws is a pain in the neck.

Time And Death

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, under sentence of death for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, will get little if any satisfaction from the 30-day reprieve granted by New Jersey's Gov. Hoffman. Death for the crime of which he has been convicted is as certain as anything can be, ever though legal complications do arise to confuse the case. Time is precious to a condemned man, to be sure, but surely the agony of waiting to die is greater than that of death itself.

In the case of Hauptmann it is the officials responsible for justice who set the highest price on time. Gov. Hoffman obviously is uncertain, he does not want to risk the execution of New Jersey's notorious prisoner until he is satisfied completely that the Lindbergh tragedy can be closed by pulling an electric switch in the execution chamber. It is difficult to understand why Gov. Hoffman must be criticized for his caution.

Hauptmann is helpless. Unless new evidence is produced, society will get the revenge it demands. The time to get the evidence is before Hauptmann's execution, not after it is too late.

But why dread congressmen? The things that hurt us most were always done by smart ones.

Playing Rough

Practical politics at its best is none too good. At its worst, it can be—and is—the world's roughest sport.

Every current discussion of politics eventually brings up the probability that the United States will see practical politics at its worst during the presidential campaign. For the most part anticipation is based on the theory that all campaigns in which there is a sharp difference of opinion between opposing factions necessarily must be bitter.

Recently there has been added to mere anticipation of bitterness tangible proof that politicians are going to play rough. The Roosevelt administration has given warning that it will use federal taxing authority against its opponents. By questioning 1929 income tax reports of John J. Raskob, estranged financial sponsor of the Democratic party, it has given its critics, particularly its wealthy ones, something to think about.

Obviously, the government can pester them relentlessly if it chooses to do so. Everything depends on how rough the Democratic administration thinks it can afford to be. There is, fortunately, a point where investigation becomes persecution, even when a millionaire's income tax is the object of questioning. Any time the general public begins to suspect that the power of government is being used too unscrupulously for partisan purposes investigations to embarrass political opponents become boomerangs. The practical politicians shouldn't be forgetting that interesting and important possibility.

The simple may elect some queer congressmen, but what's the difference if they just vote yes?

Falling In

Amid assertions that they don't want to race, the great naval powers are making everything shipshape for the greatest race ever held. The United States doesn't expect to finish worse than second and intends to finish first, if nothing happens.

The keynote of what is about to happen was struck by Sen. Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, when he said that Japan's withdrawal from the London naval conference "makes it impossible for the United States to enter into any agreement with anyone for the reduction of its naval program."

The public, of course, will fall in easily with this policy. To be sure, it doesn't understand why American energy must be burned up in a naval race, but supposes that it is because:

- 1—The United States would be captured by a theoretical enemy if it didn't prepare to defend itself.
- 2—The United States must hold up its end in the Pacific ocean.
- 3—The United States must not be outdone by either Great Britain or Japan.
- 4—The United States must be capable of challenging Japan if it tries to drive other countries out of China.
- 5—The best defense is a good offense.

Obviously, those aren't good reasons from the viewpoint of the citizen who knows more about taxes than naval warfare and spheres of influence, but they will have to do until better reasons can be found.

Man isn't so efficient. You never saw one who could tuck a piece of fur around his neck to keep his legs warm.

The quickest way to dispose of a fool idea is to let its backers learn by experience that it won't work.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, Jan. 19

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of some success, with the favoritism or marks of preferment from superiors or employers. But there is also a sign of this friendly spirit being offset by indulgence in rash, quarrelsome and impulsive personal conduct. Also there is a hint of treachery, so be cautious and controlled.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of good opportunity for success and progress, but this prospect may be placed in jeopardy by rash, impulsive and quarrelsome conduct. With restraint, alertness to duplicity or fraud, there is prospect of promotion, honors or preferment from those in high places.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, talented and ambitious but disposed to be rash, headstrong and impetuous. These should be curbed and it will find high favor with employers and those in authority.

For Monday, Jan. 20

Monday's astrological forecast is a very conflicting one, judging by the lunar transits. There is excellent promise of attaining high favoritism from those in power, with hearty support of important projects, but there are also auguries of disruption, treachery, delays and reversals. With acumen, restraint and precaution, much depends on the individual choice and determination.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which much depends on individual sagacity, precaution and determination. There are excellent auguries for success and the friendly auguries of those in important positions. But at the same time there are loopholes for trickery, upheaval and postponement of cherished objectives.

A child born on this day may be versatile, with fine character and noble ambitions, yet will be subject to treachery and depressions.

MUNITIONS INVESTIGATORS DEFEAT OWN PURPOSE

Evidence Reveals Danger of Shaping Neutrality Policy in Advance

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1936, by The Review)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The "impeachment" of Woodrow Wilson by the senate munitions investigating committee has aroused the ire of those Democrats on Capitol Hill who still believe in the sincerity and integrity of the war president.

Sen. Connally of Texas, who denounced the effort to besmirch the name of President Wilson, reflects the view of many Democrats, including officials of the executive branch of the government who have absolutely no sympathy with the course the investigation has been taking.

Thus far, the inquiry has served only to show how difficult is the policy making of a neutral nation and what violent repercussions in an economic sense come when some arbitrary act of government is interposed in an effort to hold the scales even.

Far from being an argument in favor of rigid and inflexible laws that should require immediate embargoes against belligerents when war is threatened, the "revelations" such as they are, prove that it is highly dangerous to make up a neutrality policy in advance of actual circumstances in each case.

Embargo Would Have Brought Chaos
The senate committee has sought to show that the Morgans and the international bankers and the munitions makers were responsible for American entry into the war. It has not been explained just how they forced the issue, if they did, though many documents alleging that the state department felt economic pressure have been put into the record.

The whole situation comes down, however, to one thing: America was selling goods to the allies, and the people in the farming states of the Mississippi valley were benefitting by the high prices and allied purchases. Had President Wilson imposed an embargo on the allies, the American markets would have been thrown into chaos, Germany might have overcome the allied forces on the western front, and the position of the United States as a naval power might have had to be strengthened to a point sufficient to prevent aggression.

Nobody knows what would have ensued if the allies had been defeated, but the bringing of a depression in 1917 or 1918 of the same violent character as later befell the world might have found the United States less able in the matter of financial resources to stand the earthquake. As it was, the United States was able to prevent the complete collapse in 1918 of the European economic system, and it will be recalled that, in that period of rescue, American food and funds were shipped to Germany too.

The whole theory of President Wilson's philosophy was to save civilization from a debacle. He foresaw revolutions and upheavals worse than any the world had witnessed unless the strength and resources of the United States were utilized to preserve the economic system that had been so extensively disrupted by the war.

German Policy Forced War
The investigating committee of the senate has developed nothing that even remotely convinces any fair observer that banking or financial influences drove Mr. Wilson into the war. The only thing that forced his hand was the stupid policy of the German admiralty, which proclaimed war on ships of all nations by means of a submarine attack which gave no warning to innocent persons.

While more than two decades have gone by, nevertheless, those who recall the horror and emotion felt by the American people when more than 1,000 human beings on the Lusitania were drowned like rats will not say that the Washington government had a neutral public opinion to deal with. Sympathizers for the German cause were numerous but America became pro-ally when the submarine attacks started. As for Mr. Wilson, he never would have recommended a war declaration had not Germany begun war on our own ships. It was when an American ship, carrying American passengers, was torpedoed that the German warfare was finally answered by an acceptance of the state of war.

"Neutrality" is but a synonym for "foreign policy," and the bills under consideration in congress now which would tie the hands of the president of the United States during a war situation abroad are simply an interference with a right which, under the Constitution, the chief executive had always had and should always retain.

Thus, every day in a foreign war the situation may be changing. The diplomatic representatives of the United States in foreign countries are constantly reporting confidential information that may have a bearing on American policy. To put the department into a legal straightjacket and prevent it from dealing with circumstances as they arise is merely to transfer foreign policy from the hands of the executive branch to the legislative.

Congress Passed War Resolution
Congress has the power finally to declare war, and if a neutrality policy is wrong, members of congress can oppose it. The record shows that the war resolution passed both houses in 1917 by an overwhelming vote and that virtually every congressman being "exposed" by the Nye committee today against entry into the war was made in that famous debate, including the charge by Sen. Norris of Nebraska that the war resolution was putting "the dollar sign on the American flag."

The cry that sinister influences were at work was made in 1917. But a substantial majority of both houses of congress and the virtually unanimous opinion of the American newspapers and men of prominence in both major political parties held that no other course than that taken by President Wilson was honorable. The whole congress and the spokesmen for the American people couldn't have been duped as easily as the Nye committee would have the public now believe. And as for Woodrow Wilson, he may have or may not have had reservations in his mind about the territorial greed of the allies, as shown in the secret treaties, but the fact remains he reluctantly recommended war and would gladly have given his life to have averted American participation.

NOTES ON OHIO HISTORY

From—The Galbraith Collection

A mild day in mid-winter such as gives to a swarm of bees an opportunity for a cleansing flight and a little house cleaning in the hive and some knowledge of the habits of bees, possibly saved the lives of the first family to settle in Logan county and certainly prevented them from suffering from immediate hunger.

The newcomers were Quakers, members of the family of Job Sharpe lured by the richness of the Mad river valley from their Virginia home at a time of the year when food was scarce and the country wild and unsettled.

BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt's best unofficial adviser believes the new deal will back on nature rather than a constitutional amendment to change the majority opinion of the Supreme Court. He has consulted life insurance charts and concludes that Mr. Roosevelt may look forward to appointing no fewer than three new Supreme Court justices if he is reelected for a second term.

Republican Chairman Fletcher does not know it, but many new deal bureaus have been dramatizing skits like "Liberty at the Crossroads," for radio broadcasting. The federal housing administration has been particularly active in that respect. It employs actors. Their efforts are recorded on transcription records which are sent around to all broadcasting stations, including those owned by the chains now refusing to handle Mr. Fletcher's dramatizations.

Radio technicians believe the chain broadcasting did Mr. Fletcher a favor by declining to accept wholly political dramas. As they see it, the new deal could out-dramatize the opposition, if it ever got around to that. They foresee greater technical dramatic possibilities in Mr. Roosevelt playing Uncle Tom to the wolves.

No Copy
Al Smith will not give out copies of his Liberty League speech in advance. He is writing it in note form on the backs of envelopes. The league will have stenographers take it down in five-minute relays. There will be no formidable presidential movement for Al. Both he and his friends are agreed that he should put his foot down against any such activity. He will make that clear in his speech.

Listening
What is behind the current federal communications commission row is the fact that the son of a commissioner listened at the keyhole of a hotel room and overheard some fancy remarks about the commission from radio men. One thing he overheard was a remark that one commissioner could "be bought for two bits," or something like that. He did not see the smiles on the faces of some of the radio men when they used those big, long words disrespectfully describing the commissioners.

Taxes
You may accept it as a fact that the new benefit payments to farmers will not be financed by new income taxes, but through excise taxes, perhaps on farm implements.

Creel
Several friends of George Creel (Democratic gubernatorial candidate in California last time) have the idea that he has turned against the new deal because he is privately criticizing so many of its features. A competent authority on that subject is certain that Creel does not intend to break publicly with the administration.

Fair-Haired Boys
Cabinet favorites at the White House now are Morgenthau, Wallace and Ickes. They frequently are invited to luncheon at the White House. Morgenthau regularly every Monday. Wallace and Ickes usually come together. Roper brings in many delegations to the executive offices. He still is the coordinator, cooperator and collusionist with business—in a way. Secretaries Dern, Swanson and Perkins seldom come around.

Odds and Ends
The new budget provides for twelve more White House police, making 55 in all to guard the executive mansion. Their salary allowance will be $146,700 a year.

Silence
During the first two weeks that congress was in session, it received not a single specific recommendation for legislation.

OHIO ODDITIES
By R. C. HALL
The fact that the great Shawnee chieftan, Cornstalk, the hero of perhaps a hundred battles, should be perished at the hand of an assassin is one of the historical oddities for which there is no accounting. Having been defeated at Point Pleasant in 1774, his tribe withdrew to the vicinity of the present city of Circleville, O., where peace was made with the whites. Cornstalk took the leadership of the peace party among his people and he and his son went to Point Pleasant to warn the whites of the condition of affairs. The two Indians were detained as hostages and Cornstalk was treacherously slain by a white man who had become exasperated at the cruelty of the Shawnees.

NEW YORK NOTES

By O. O. MONTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—I notice the restaurant called The Flying Trapeze has given up its name. It may have been an excellent eatery. I wouldn't know. But the name was too prophetic. Most of us dining out have been expecting any day to have a flying trapezist kerplop in our soup.

If one has ever missed half a Kirsten Flagstad aria because the moron behind insisted on eating peanut brittle with a defective plate, there should be an appreciation of how a hungry New Yorker feels when the draft from an adagio dance turns his steaming onion soup into consommé glee.

Too many cooks may spoil the broth in the kitchen but in many dining rooms it's something else. More than once I've poised a fork for an exquisite jab into a noisette de veau when swish! all lights flashed out. Except a baby spot for a hussy who could sing as well in the dark.

There are restaurants—the Ritz, Colony and Monetta's, for instance—where the cuisine is such there is no need to divert attention. Food itself takes the center of the stage and the bows. One does not have to bring along a flashlight and chafing dish. Only an appetite.

Expert pampering of a robust appetite is one of the agreeable arts. Such as the studied expectancy of a waiter captain slowly lifting the silver covering from the entree. Or anticipating the want of a condiment. Or the magic whisking away of bones from fish or fowl just as they begin to look mussed. Dining with Ray Long, Leon Gordon and Oris Ralston in shadowy Foyot's one evening, I glanced up inquiringly at a waiter trying to think of the name of a meat sauce I had run across for the first time the day before. He bounded off to one of those 17th century block-long sideboards and returned with it. Rather conclusive proof of mental telepathy.

The calloused agnostic cannot visit the Cathedral of St. John the Divine without experiencing exalted reverence. More than any other structure in town it mitigates by vastness the specious charge of metropolitan indifference to the spiritual. Nowhere in the scatter-brained storm of complex city living is the inevitable vortex of calm so pronounced. The vaulted corridors, cool colonnades, stately pillars, all tinged by the roseate glow from serene figures leaded into lofty windows, blend an aura of mysticism that lends to grey stone a very soul. One can almost behold the materially warped expanding spiritually as they enter.

Only one other vista I have seen is comparable to St. John's when a gathering dusk is shifting in the shadows. This is from the Blue Ridge mountains in the Fall after ascending from the valley of the Shenandoah. Looking back from the Cotswold-like crest of the winding road there is a wind-sculptured panorama of gold and rust leaves blocked off in enormous tessellation. Fields bordered by rough stone walls and criss-crosses of rail fences. It offers an exquisite homeliness, an October fire of acridness and the shelter of a tradition every American should hug these days when cherished things totter.

In the next block is a saintly J. M. Barrie type whose gracious acts may never be frescoed in windows or inspire a shaft to beacon his goodness. Yet he goes his way, aiding those in need and without hope of reward, a pinion of faith. This morning he was distressed. An acquaintance, a writer I'm sorry to say, he had befriended, robbed him of quite a sum. "If only I can keep it from his wife and daughter," he said. Thought of revenge had never entered his head. A REVIEW OF WEEK'S IMPORTANT NEWSGlancing Back at World's Major HappeningsBy DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the somber death house of the New Jersey state prison there paced a sorrowful, phlegmatic man. He smoked endless cigarettes. He wheeled sharply to harken to footsteps in the corridor.

In less than 18 months his name had become a byword in American households. It had sprung into headlines as large and as black as those which chronicle major catastrophes and detail the fate of empires.

This was Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted perpetrator of one of the most bizarre crimes in a quarter of a century, the kidnapping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby. Barring intervention he was to die in explanation of his crime against the law.

Attorneys argued. A governor held hurried conferences. Courts passed on eleventh-hour appeals. The question was, did the evidence justify execution? Involved was the moral obligation of the state to see the law was satisfied, but not at the expense of killing a possibly innocent man.

A reprieve spared the German-born Hauptmann's scheduled march to the electric chair last night. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman offered no explanation of his action. In Berlin the press was critical of Hauptmann's having been convicted on circumstantial evidence.

Red Ink

Capitol Hill and the United States Supreme Court had in common this week the question of constitutionality. To last week's revolutionary AAA decision the latter appended another, holding that $20,000,000 in impounded processing taxes was collected illegally. One point, however, was not passed on: That section of AAA imposing on the processor the burden of proving he had not passed the tax on to the consumer. AAA counsel contended the decision had no effect on the billion dollars already collected and disbursed to farmers.

The court, nevertheless, by a stroke of the pen put the administration "in the red" by that $200,000,000. Added to that was some $280,000,000 which AAA owes farmers under 1935 contracts.

A prospective test of the Bankhead cotton control act fizzled out when the court dismissed the action. This left to the state of Georgia the chance to pursue the suit on the constitutionality of the Bankhead act on the allegation of damage.

Another Farm Plan

Meanwhile, the Roosevelt administration, harried by demands from some farm organizations to create a phoenix of AAA, developed an ingenious plan for crop control. It was based on the Constitutional right of congress to spend public funds for conservation of the nation's soil resources in the public interest. In place of the benefit payment, the farmer would receive a cash award for scientific farm management.

Former President Hoover, increasingly militant in attacking the new deal, presented his own farm relief plan to a Lincoln, Neb., audience. It encompassed increased food consumption, retirement of submarginal land and encouragement of cooperative marketing.

In spite of a prediction that the government's deficit might reach $4 billion in the next fiscal year, a plan for prepayment of the soldiers' bonus with financing by "baby" bonds crystallized rapidly in the senate. President Roosevelt was noncommittal on the question of a veto. Opinion in congress was divided as to whether new taxes might prove necessary.

A Peace Poll

As the Nye committee delved further into murky records in an effort to determine the cause of America's entry into the World war, the new neutrality bill shaped up. Not unnoticed in Washington was a national peace poll conducted by two churches in which only six percent of 200,000 votes said they would support "any war" the government might conduct.

Sen. Nye's group became embroiled in a contest with the Nye committee over the question of President Wilson's veracity in answering questions relative to secret treaties affecting the terms of the Versailles bloodiest war.

Death took no holiday this week. In the worst accident in American commercial aviation, 17 rode to death on a plane which crumpled like an eggshell in an Arkansas swamp. Seven died in the crash of an army plane in Columbia, 24 in the wreckage of a freighter on the Oregon coast, 16 in the foundering of a ferry boat in the Gulf of Finland.

But good news issued from ice-bound Antarctica where Lincoln Ellsworth, the explorer, missing for almost two months, was reported safe in Little America, a date made famous by Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd.

Sabers Rattle

Japan's withdrawal from the ailing five-power London naval conference was attended by saber rattling. The Soviet press, the German press and Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese garrison in North China, predicted war within a 12th month. Perhaps more for foreign than home consumption, Moscow announced it had the world's biggest army with 1,300,000 men in uniform.

Early "little rains" in Ethiopia plagued the Italian advance in the north, but a fresh Fascist offensive was reported under way on the southern front.

Howard Hughes, movie producer, set a new transcontinental flight record, 9 hours, 27 minutes, 10 seconds.

MID-YEAR CLASS OF 36 GRADUATES AT WEIRTON HIGH

Commencement Exercises Are Conducted Friday Night In Steel Town

HONOR PUPILS CHOSEN

Ritualistic Service, 'Light Of Truth,' Presented As Program Feature

Special To The Review.
WEIRTON, W. Va., Jan. 16 — A class of 36 received diplomas at mid-year commencement exercises in the Weirton high school here Friday night.

The exercises were featured by a ritualistic service, "The Light of Truth." Miss Mildred Dill was the guardian of light and Gayle Nach was master of ceremonies. Roles of vestals were portrayed by Misses Mary Alice Briscoe, May McDonough, Marie Peaker and Marie Hooper.

TRAFFIC IS RESUMED AFTER AVENUE TIEUP

Truck, With Nine-Ton Load, Moved From East End Hill

A truck loaded with nine tons of steel, owned by the Motor Express Co., of Cleveland was moved Friday afternoon by a large wrecker after blocking traffic on Pennsylvania avenue for almost 20 hours. Traffic was resumed after being detoured via the River road.

The truck's trailer skidded partially over an embankment on the "hill road", while the cab extended across the highway. It was enroute from Midland, Pa., to Detroit, Mich.

Another smaller truck became stalled on Pennsylvania avenue near the top of the East Fifth street hill, when it skidded on the snow covered pavement. The motor car was loaded with lumber.

Mrs. Fred Dunlevy was surprised on Wednesday night by a group of members of the Friendly class of the Methodist Protestant Sunday school celebrating her birthday anniversary. The social committee of the class were hostesses. After various amusements, a luncheon was served.

March 7 for the annual roundtable meeting of the Northwestern

Improvements Required To Expedite Production At District Boatyard

SPEED TERMINAL WORK

Government Engineers Will Inspect Welded Pipe At Steubenville

The Midland Barge Yard, a subsidiary of the Treadwell Construction Co., has completed the construction of additional launching ways on the Ohio river bank. It was announced today. The work has been in progress for more than a month.

The ways, of steel and wood construction, are located west of the existing launching equipment. The project was deemed necessary to expedite production after receiving new orders.

Railroad Plans Conway Work

A permit was issued this week by the district engineers to the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. to construct a straight line unloader crane with timber breastworks, relocate a whirler crane 600 feet upstream and drive additional pile clusters at its river-rail terminal at Conway, Pa.

Government engineers have been requested by the district engineers at Tucumcari, N. M., to inspect 160,000 feet of six and five-eighth inch lap welded steel pipe, which will be fabricated by the Wheeling Steel Corp., at its Steubenville plant. They recently approved 2,500,000 feet of galvanized bridge wire strand at Monessen, Pa., which will be shipped down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers for use in flood control work in the second New Orleans district.

Steel Cargo Passes Here

The John G. Britton passed here Friday with two barges of steel products, weighing 1,500 tons, for southern delivery. It will pick up four more barges of steel at Weirton and Follansbee, W. Va., which will be turned over to the steamer American at New Martinsville for shipment to Memphis and New Orleans.

Other tows locked through dam No. 8 were composed of gasoline, sand, gravel, coal and coke. The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., of Pittsburgh is preparing to place steel covers on 10 barges used in the steel towing trade on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

FORMER TRAIN BANDIT THANKS FRIEND HERE

Carlisle, Pardoned In West, Writes To Anna McKenna

Will L. Carlisle, last of the west's notorious train robbers who was released from the Wyoming state penitentiary at Rawlins recently, has reformed in every sense of the term. Mrs. Anna McKenna of 941 Denver street, mother-in-law of the prison ward, Alex McPherson, said today.

Mrs. McKenna received a letter of appreciation from Carlisle for a recent expression of good will after he was freed.

Through her two daughters, Mrs. Olive McKenna McPherson, wife of the warden, and Mrs. Della McKenna Burke of Casper, Wyo., who frequently saw Carlisle in prison, Mrs. McKenna knew the notorious prisoner.

Writing from Kemmerer, Wyo., where he located after he was pardoned, Carlisle told Mrs. McKenna of the "kindness of Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Burke." "I owe them much more than I shall ever be able to pay," he commented.

WELLSVILLE STADIUM PROJECT EXPEDITED

Inclement Weather Fails To Delay Construction

Snowstorms and rain during the last week or 10 days have failed to halt WPA construction at the high school stadium in Wellsville, officials said today as the project was expedited in the expectation that it will be completed by spring.

Concrete work on a section 90 feet long and 32 feet wide was completed Friday by a crew of laborers under the direction of M. K. Duty, superintendent of construction for the board of education.

The project is the chief WPA program now under way in Wellsville. With street work, it has absorbed many persons heretofore on relief rolls.

Supt. Duty said unfinished work on the structure will be rushed during the next few weeks.

Extravaganza Will Feature Outstanding Artists

Paris will come to East Liverpool next week with the presentation of Folies de Paree on the stage of the Ceramic theater Friday and Saturday.

Folies de Paree is daring, spicy Parisian extravaganza that will bring the atmosphere and essence of the famous boulevards of the world's playground, with an array of dynamic artists from two continents and hundreds of latest and smartest Parisian creations of fashion by Parisian modistes as well as 15 stage scenes.

This is the same show that has won the praise of audiences in all the capitals of this country.

Dynamic Chic Mmes.: Bill Tel-aak, the all American Drawback in his imitable clowning; with Bill Brown and Sally Payne; MILO, international entertainer; Willfrid D. Bois, outstanding juggler, Mayfields and Virginia, startling adagio artists that are different; lovely Helen Doyle, ingenue formerly featured at WLW; Eddie Pritchard; the Parisienne models and many others are featured in this sparkling French revue presenting a musicalized travogue of exotic beauty.

COMING ATTRACTIONS IN THE THEATERS

COLUMBIA

A human pyramid, an impersonator of Popeye, a singer with a girl dancer for accompanist, and an embryo Greek Houdini are among the contestants seeking glory and gold in the story about a radio amateur-hour broadcast which Paramount has made into one of the season's most entertaining screen attractions—"Millions in the Air".

The picture, coming Sunday to the Columbia theater, is the first full-length feature to be devoted to the amateur-hour theme and all the drama of this vast popular new entertainment medium is brought into the film story.

"Millions in the Air" is concerned mainly with the romance of a young ice-cream salesman and the daughter of the radio program's sponsor. Wendy Barrie and John Howard, the two principals, are among the contestants on the "Kello" hour. Miss Barrie, who goes on the program under an assumed name, seeks to establish herself as a singer because she is bored by the society life she leads. Howard, who plays a saxophone, wants to win the first prize of $500 so that he may buy a better "stand" for his ice-cream truck.

The parade of amateur performers to the microphone reveals not only the inner workings of the amateur-hour broadcasts, but serves to indicate the emotional nature of the show.

Willie Howard, long prominent as a Broadway comedian, takes the part of an Italian vegetable peddler. He has been seeking for twenty years for someone to appreciate his rendition of "Rigoletto," and in the person of Catherine Doucet, a middle-aged dowager who also labors under the impression that she can sing, he finds a kindred spirit.

Harry Semels is the Greek Houdini bearing the prepossessing name of Nikolas Popadopolis, who expedited in the expectation that it will be completed by spring.

Careless Habits Often Result in Danger to Child

Doctor Advises Painstaking Preparation and Serving Of Youngster's Food

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"NO DOUBT you have watched a tailor at his work. Perhaps he had many pins in his mouth and you wondered that he did not swallow them. You have seen a man laying carpet, holding the tacks in his mouth. You have seen your mother or your wife performing the same way.

Too often the child, imitating the parent, places a pin, tack or other object in the mouth and accidentally swallows it. This is an alarming accident. In some instances the windpipe becomes obstructed and the patient suffers agony. All too often instantaneous death is caused by the attempt to swallow some large object.

Sometimes the swallowed material is small, but has sharp and pointed edges. In consequence it may pierce the gullet or even the stomach or intestine. Severe internal injuries are caused in this way. Usually the object is passed without any damage or discomfort.

Because of this accident children are daily brought to hospitals for treatment. Let us be honest with ourselves and admit that this is all due to carelessness in placing the small objects, such as pins, buttons, marbles or very small toys, within reach of the little ones.

Avoid Bad Example

No habit can be worse than that of placing pins and other objects in the mouth. There is always the danger of swallowing them. Besides, it sets a bad example. Children love to mimic their elders. If you place pins in your mouth in the presence of your child, he will be tempted to do the same thing.

Sometimes this accident is caused by carelessness in the preparation of the food and its feeding to the child. When serving a food like fish to a youngster, make sure the bones are removed. Avoid joking and hearty laughter at the table while eating such foods.

Fortunately, foreign bodies can now be removed without a cutting operation. By foreign bodies I mean such objects as bones, pins and other substances that may lodge in the gullet or wind pipe. Their removal is now successfully accomplished by means of a special instrument called the "bronchoscope."

Foreign Bodies Menace

This instrument was first used as far back as 1897. But it is only within recent years that it has been perfected by equipment with special lenses and electric lamps. In a sense the bronchoscope is like the periscope of a submarine. It enables the doctor accurately to locate the swallowed object, grasp it and remove it. Its use has materially reduced the mortality and complications which follow the swallowing of foreign bodies.

A foreign body is a source of danger until it has been recovered. Its presence should never be ignored. Even though there may be pain in removing it, it must be done. In every case consult the doctor. The X-ray picture should be taken because they show the exact location of the offending object.

Edward L. Greene, General Manager.

January 16th, 1936.

Mr. E. Fred Jones, Sales Manager

Columbiana County Memorial Park Assoc., Odd Fellows' Temple, East Liverpool, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

We have your letter of January 14th. The bulletin which you enclosed is apparently a reprint of a bulletin published by this Bureau on September 11th, 1935. This reprint was not produced by this Bureau nor has this Bureau circulated these bulletins in your community. As a matter of fact, we know nothing about your organization, either good or bad, and we would therefore have no more reason for circulating this bulletin in your city than in any other. You realize, of course, that anyone securing a copy of our original bulletin could, if they so desired, reproduce it.

Our bulletin is not intended, nor do we believe it can properly be construed as critical of memorial parks in general any more than various bulletins which we have published from time to time dealing with various practices involved in the sale of various securities could be construed as meaning that we are opposed to the sale of securities in general. We know perfectly well that there are both good and bad memorial park promotions. Our bulletin was intended to aid persons to distinguish between them. If, as you state, there is not a single criticism in our pamphlet which could be applied to your organization, it is not clear to us how the bulletin could be so construed as to injure your organization in any way.

Very truly yours,

MINISTER TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Bible Prophecies Fulfilled,
M. A. Bourdeau Declares
In Friday Sermon

Depicting the drama of the world's history and the present predicament of mankind, Evangelist M. A. Bourdeau of Washington will speak Sunday night at Pottery Hall on the subject, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?"

The evangelist addressed the Young People's Society of the local Seventh-day Adventist church Friday night.

"The terrific inroads that modern machinery has made into the realm of employment—the never ending struggle between the employer and the employee and the unsteadiness of the financial structure of this country are indicated in Bible prophecy as a sign of the nearness of Jesus return, notably in the 11th chapter of James," he declared.

"Sunday night I will show directly from God's word His solution to our employment, our financial, and our spiritual crisis. The key to this solution may be given in one word. That word is not 'good-will,' it is not 'righteousness,' it is not 'faith,' yet it is found all through the Bible, and provides the only solution to our problem, as a nation, as a community, and as individuals."

"The second coming of Jesus which is taught all through the Scriptures as a fundamental doctrine, is to be a literal, actual coming, which is the end of the world. Millions lie sleeping in false spiritual security, unaware of the sudden destruction that is soon to come upon the world. It is now high time that we obeyed the command to 'Search the Scriptures' that we shall not be caught unprepared."

LUTHERANS TO OPEN ATTENDANCE DRIVE

Reinartz Family To Be Honored On Mother's Day

A campaign to boost attendance at the Sunday night service and at the monthly meetings of the Lutheran auxiliary will be launched at the St. John's Lutheran church this week.

The campaign will end Mother's day, May 10, which will also mark the 50th anniversary of the beginning of the ministry of the Reinartz family in the local Lutheran church. Dr. J. G. Reinartz of Midland, was pastor of St. John's from 1886 to 1930 when he was succeeded by his son, Rev. E. E. Reinartz who has served since that time.

About 50 of the men members of the church will participate in the attendance promoting campaign. The men will be divided into two divisions, one headed by John Schneidmiller, the other by Allen A. Burrows.

Mr. Schneidmiller will be assisted by Alvin L. Arner, Frank C. Shone, Alfred E. Stoddard, S. Luther Gilbert and Ellsworth M. Trautman, while Mr. Burrows' aids will be Walter F. Stier, Clarence B. Lamp, president of the Lutheran Brotherhood, Otto R. Johnson, Frank Buxton and J. Eugene Schneidmiller.

BOYCE REVIVAL WILL FOLLOW PRAYER WEEK

Cleveland Bible Institute
Aid Here On Feb. 9

Miss Eva Clausen, a member of the staff of the Cleveland Bible Institute, has been engaged to aid Rev. L. Chester Lewis in conducting an evangelistic campaign in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church in Klondike which will be launched Sunday, Feb. 9.

Miss Clausen, who has been in charge of camp Sycamore and other boys' and girls' activities in the Forest City, will conduct the youth work at the revival here. Rev. Lewis will do the preaching.

The campaign will be preceded by a week of prayer, beginning Sunday, Feb. 2, and continuing every day. The theme of the prayer meetings will be, "How to Win Souls."

The last evangelistic services were conducted in the church last by the Epworth league late in 1935. Scores responded to the altar call. Rev. G. K. Donaldson of Wellsville was the evangelist.

CHURCH NOTES

Rev. Charles Rath of Wooster, former missionary worker in the Philippine Islands, will speak in three Presbyterian churches of the Wellsville district Sunday. He will appear in the Yellow Creek Presbyterian church at 11 a. m., in the Oak Ridge church at 2:30 p. m., and in the Second Presbyterian church at 7:30 p. m.

The Ashbury Bible class will have charge of the Sunday night service in the First Methodist Episcopal church. Musical numbers will be furnished by the class members and by the choir. Ira F. Mellinger of Leetonia will be the speaker.

The choir, directed by Mrs. Millcent DuBois, will sing the anthems, "Like as a Heart," by Marks, and "O, Taste and See" by Nevill at the 10:45 a. m. service.

A musical program will be featured in the Anderson Methodist Episcopal church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. A children's violin quartet will play two selections. Miss Agnes Shaddock will give two concert violin selections and will also speak on the subject, "The Forgotten Interest in Soul Winning." The Epworth League society will meet at 6:30 p. m.

In the absence of Rev. B. H. Shaddock, who is confined to his home in McKinnon avenue with torn right leg ligaments, W. L. Mautz, layman from the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church, will fill the pulpit of the Anderson Methodist Episcopal church at 10 a. m., and the Orchard Grove church at 11 a. m. Sunday. Mr. Mautz will be accompanied by a group of musicians who will assist with both services.

Rev. Paul E. Secrest, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church will preach in the Orchard Grove church at 7:30 p. m.

The newly elected vestry will reorganize at a meeting in the St. Stephen's parish hall Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Other meetings in the parish next week include: Monday, 7:30 p. m., Circle No. 1; Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., Girls' Friendly society; Thursday, 1:30 Women's auxiliary; 7:30 p. m., choir mother and son choir practice; Friday, 6:30 p. m., candidates for Girls' Friendly society.

Baptism of children will be featured in the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 11. Special music will be featured at the 7:30 p. m. service. A large ladies' choir will join the men's choir in leading the singing at this service.

Glenn Woods will occupy the pulpit at the Beechwood mission Sunday at 3:30 p. m., an hour after Sunday school is scheduled. The quartet from the First Baptist church will sing.

Rev. C. D. Marston of Steubenville, district superintendent, will preach at services in the Highland town Methodist Episcopal church near Wellsville, Sunday morning. Communion will also be distributed. Rev. D. L. Springer, the pastor, will introduce the speaker.

Rev. C. C. Shafer, pastor of the Newell Nazarene church, will preach in the Stratton Nazarene church Sunday afternoon. Music will also be given by the double mixed quartet from the Newell church.

A newly organized Junior choir of 25 voices directed by Ollie Reese will sing at the morning services in the New Cumberland Christian church Sunday.

An intermediate Christian Endeavor society has been organized in this church with 28 members. Miss Betty Armour is president and Rev. Don P. Hawkins is sponsor. Mrs. Hawkins is president of the Senior Christian Endeavor society.

Members of the East Liverpool Ministerial association will hold a panel discussion Monday morning at 10 o'clock on the subject "The Claim of Outside Affairs in a Minister's Program."

Those taking part will be Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church; Rev. L. J. Davidson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church; Rev. E. R. Reed, pastor of the Pennsylvania Methodist Episcopal church; and W. H. Nagel, Y. M. C. A. secretary.

POTTER CAGERS HANDED INITIAL DEFEAT OF YEAR

YOUNGSTOWN CHANEY TOPS LOCAL COMBINE IN CLOSE ENCOUNTER

Lindell's Floor Team Fails to Click After Overcoming Visitors' Early Lead—Last Quarter Becomes Mad Scramble for Points—New Philly Tonight

By GEORGE M. VINCENT, Sports Editor, The Review.

East Liverpool High's Potter cagers took their first defeat of the season last night, out-pointed down the home stretch of a nip and tuck battle with a fighting band of floormen from Youngstown Chaney.

The locals started the last quarter on the downside of a 20-18 count, went ahead once, fell behind again, then knotted the count but lost out at the finish 31-29.

A capacity crowd jammed the Potter gymnasium, hopeful of seeing the Blue and White run its victory streak to eight games but it was no go. Chaney, playing without its ace forward, Terlecki who was benched yesterday for disciplinary reasons, failed to exhibit anything extraordinary in the way of smooth floor play but there were two boys who were sinking their shots with uncanny accuracy.

As a result the locals, who were just letting their own slants at the basket fly any which way in a great many cases, today find one marked up on the red side of the ledger.

Coach Lindell started his second team as usual and let them continue through the first quarter. Just as Wellsville, Salem and Akron did in the last three tilts, they got the jump. But the regulars found little trouble in erasing the deficit before the first half ended. In doing so, however, they failed to flash more than just a flicker of the form that carried them to previous triumphs. Midway through the second quarter they started to open up and scored four quick field goals to lead 13-10 but they did not keep up the fast play and Chaney potted one to end the half just one point behind.

Chaney Comes Back Fighting

Chaney came back from its dressing room after the intermission in a fighting mood. The visitors' play, which had been erratic in the first half, settled down to some extent in the third period as they took the lead at the start and held it through the entire eight minutes.

Liverpool, behind going into the last quarter for the first time this year, garnered two fouls and a field goal to take the lead but Chaney came right back with a series of mad rushes down the floor to score five points. The locals tied it up again but Chaney edged away with another two-point play. After that it was just a matter of galloping hither and yon on the part of both teams with little or no effort at coordination. The visitors' aims were just a bit better than those of the Blue and White.

The Potters messed up a golden opportunity to pull the game out of the fire in the closing minutes by missing three foul attempts in the fourth quarter.

Chaney won the ball game on the foul line. Both teams had 11 field goals but Chaney converted on nine of 17 foul chances and the locals made only seven of 17.

Two players stood out in the fray, one on each side. Kauffman, Chaney's fast-breaking sharpshooter, was all over the floor and when he moved for the basket it meant danger for the Blue and White. He netted five buckets from the floor and made four of six from the foul line, for a total of 14 points. One hesitates to think of what might have happened had Terlecki been in the game. Terlecki is rated as an even better point-shooter than Kauffman.

But Siffon comes in for the other share of the honors, principally for his work on the defense. He had the misfortune to play just a mite too close, however, and was ejected from the battle for too many personals. When he left the game the Potter defense, which has been its main stock in trade so far this season, went into a decided slump. His steady influence on the offense was also sorely missed.

Mackey Garner 10 Points

Honorable mention, if such can be handed out, might be given to Porter Mackey and Bruskio, enemy guard. Mackey made a couple of beautiful shots in hitting 10 points. He knocked four field goals and fouls but his shooting was off. His queer lunges backward were not finding their mark as they often do. Bruskio made four field goals and a foul. Five of his nine points were included in Chaney's last six points. They were certainly timely.

Make no mistake about it, while the Potters were off the form they have demonstrated to be in their bag of tricks in other games, they were trying every minute and did not give up until the whistle ended the game. Every mance of them wanted that game placed in the victory column and they were fighting their hearts out for it. But their energies went for naught when the polished team play, believed to be within the range of their capabilities, failed to show up.

Chaney had a good outfit and deserved to win the ball game in the light of the Potters' performance but it was not particularly the kind of team one thinks of when considering above average talent. It lacked the balance and confident floor play, for instance, that Akron North displayed here last week. It driving spirit that wins plenty of basketball tilts.

The Potters face New Philadelphia at 8:30 tonight. From advance notices that team should be much harder to beat than Youngstown Chaney. This department believes the locals can take New Philadelphia but it feels sure they will not do it with the brand of play exhibited last night. The victory streak is broken but another can be started and there's no time like the present, Potters!

SALEM CAGERS TRIP ALLIANCE FIVE, 22-20

Pukalski Nets Winning Basket With Long Shot

SALEM, Jan. 18.—Herb Brown's Quakers won last night in the win column last night by defeating Alliance, their ancient rivals, 22-20, on the local floor.

The game was close throughout. Salem had a 7-5 advantage at the end of the first quarter and dropped a point in the second to lead at the half 13-12. The score going into the final frame was Salem 20, Alliance 18. During the entire period Alliance scored only two fouls and Salem won the game in the closing minutes on a long basket by Pukalski which went through the draperies without touching the rim.

It was Salem's first victory in her last four starts. Shears led the scorers with nine points. Starks was close behind with eight and Pukalski followed with seven.

TORONTO CAGERS UPSET CHESTER IN FAST BATTLE

West Virginians Unable to Stop Point-Making Ram-page of Swaykus

Chester High school's basketball aggregation took a jaunt downtown last night and dropped a 49-25 to Toronto's Red Knights, well recognized as one of the faster cage teams in the valley.

The West Virginians were unable to stop Brown, the swift moving Toronto forward, who found the basket for nine field goals and 10 fouls to score almost enough points to win the game by himself. Swaykus, Brown's running mate, who is about as highly touted, had more than a little trouble hitting the net. Toronto ran up 14 points in the first quarter, while Chester was scoring four and the Red Knights ran in four substitutes. The West Virginians easily outplayed this combine throughout the second period, outscoring them 9-4.

The Toronto starting lineup came back again at the start of the second half and, although they were not able to hold the Chester cagers down like they did in the initial frame, scored another 15 points in short order. Some of the subs again took over the situation, and the Chester stock again rose.

The starting five went back in at the close of the game and rang up six field goals in the last three minutes of play.

It was just a little too much Swaykus for Chester. Clutter and Wilson were the leaders in the Chester offense. Clutter made two field goals and three fouls and Wilson scored three times from the floor and once from the foul line. Vanaman played a bang-up game on defense.

The Chester quintet will meet Bethany tonight at Bethany.

BOARDMAN DEFEATS LISBON BASKETEERS

Biklemen Powerless to Stop Long String of Points

LISBON, Jan. 18.—Boardman High's cagers snapped out of the lethargy that has enveloped them for the most part of the early season and handed Phil Bikle's Lisbon High quintet a 39-14 defeat here last night.

Boardman scored 13 points in the first half and held the locals to three. Lisbon snapped out of it a little in the last two frames but Boardman went even hotter, netting a total of 18 points in the last quarter, almost as much as the first three periods combined.

Daniels, Wagman and Bergman were the scoring aces for the victors. Not a single Blue and White cager was able to find the hoop for more than one field goal.

The scrap was a Tri-County league affair.

WINNING OUTFIT RUNS UP BIG LEAD IN FIRST HALF OF BATTLE

IRONDALE, Jan. 18.—Irondale High School's cagers trekked down to Amsterdam last night and took the short end of a 37-25 count in a fast and furious basketball tilt.

Amsterdam built up a big lead in the first half by netting 23 points to the locals' eight, but the Irondalers came back in the last half to outscore their opponents but the late sport fell quite a few points short of the amount needed to reserve the tables.

The Irondale girls' team lost to the Amsterdam lassies, 22-16.

Retzlaff Slugs With Louis, Knocked Out In First Round

POTTER SCRUBS DOWN VISITORS

Morboto Cagers Wake Up in Second Half to Trip Chaney Outfit

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—They found a fighter game enough to slug with Joe Louis, but not anywhere near good enough to keep the spectacular Brown Bomber from achieving his 23rd, and quickest, knockout triumph.

The victim was strapping Charley Retzlaff from the North Dakota wheat country. He lasted just one minute and 25 seconds of the first round before going down and out under the Detroit Negro's stunning punches last night in the Chicago stadium. A crowd of 16,486 saw Retzlaff keep his promise to try to make a fight of it, only to be completely outclassed.

Louis' latest triumph was much like other recent spectacular victories, except that it didn't require as much time.

The Bomber, sticking to his plan of ending it as quickly as possible, devoted about a minute to figuring Retzlaff out. The remaining seconds saw the six-foot, three-inch farmer from the northwest go down twice under merciless, methodical punishment.

The crowd broke into a roar as Retzlaff strode out and made the first offensive gesture, a straight left that failed to reach its mark. Louis poked an experimental left into Retzlaff's face, but the customers screamed again as the condemned fighter let go with his famous right.

The blow appeared to have landed, but Louis said later that he had moved inside, causing Retzlaff's arm to curl harmlessly around his neck.

Then the cheers for Retzlaff's cause arose for the last time as the rawboned farmer tore in swinging with both hands. Louis, his face as expressionless as the dial of a dollar watch, backed into the ropes, then slipped away to the center of the ring.

From there on everyone realized what was about to happen. Louis smashed a left hook to the chin that sent Retzlaff down. Retzlaff, instinctively courageous, struggled up at the count of seven.

Benumbed and rubbery legged, he attempted to back away as Louis, knowing it was no longer necessary to defend himself, glided in for the finish. A storm of short, deadly punches hung Retzlaff over the ropes and a final right and left to the head sent him to the floor. He didn't move until the timekeeper tolled out "nine," then made a futile effort to get his legs under him. They couldn't help him and he rolled on his side as the count ended.

Louis' first appearance of the year produced gross receipts of $67,826.66. Louis' share was 40 percent of the gate, radio and motion picture "take." Retzlaff settled for 17 1/2 percent of the gate receipts.

Failure of the attendance to reach expected proportions was due to a large extent to a heavy snow which started to fall about two hours before doors were opened.

Langemen Hold All But One Player Scoreless in Slow Encounter

SALINEVILLE, Jan. 18.—Bill Lange's Salineville cagers triumphed over Augusta last night, 16-8, in a slow game played at Augusta.

Augusta was unable to fathom the tight Salineville defense and the locals, while having difficulty themselves in registering points, took the game without much trouble.

Sy, Augusta guard, scored all of his team's points, three field goals and two fouls. Bettis and Johnson led the offensive for the victors.

6TH STREETERS DEFEAT SAINTS IN CAGE BATTLE

Tilt Furnishes Fast Action On Five-Game Grammar School Card

Sixth Street and St. Aloysius battled through an extra period with the former winning 20-17 to furnish the feature attraction on the five-game Grade School Cage league card at the high school yesterday afternoon.

The two teams battled on even terms through the first half with the score at the intermission standing 7-7. The Saints moved out to a big lead in the second half but the Sixth Streeters came along fast toward the close and tied it up 15-15 a few seconds before the final whistle. In the extra period the winners went ahead on a long shot by Stockdale but the Saints tied it up again on Bennett's basket. Secret's sleeper shot and a foul conversion by Rolley ended the game. Secret and Bennett were the high scorers for their respective teams.

Horace Mann and Neville put on a nice exhibition with the former winning out 18-11. The victors had a 14-7 lead at half-time. Each team scored four points during the second half. Horner again copied scoring honors for Horace Mann with six field goals. The Neville scoring was well divided.

Pleasant Heights defeated Glenmoor 8-3 with Captain Bowen leading the former's offense. The victors had a 6-0 edge at the half-time intermission.

McKinley topped Taft 18-4 in the only walkaway game of the afternoon. Coach Porter Mackey of the winning outfit used three full teams. H. Robinson and Ward were the high-pointers with three and two field goals respectively.

Grant and Lincoln staged a battle royal in which both sides found trouble in hitting the basket. Lincoln led 4-2 at the half but Grant held the north side bunch scoreless in the second half to win 6-4. McVay and Ludington scored for Grant while Kinsey and Patterson tallied for the losers.

COLUMBIANA CAGERS DOWN SCIENCEVILLE

Unger and Fisher Lead Victors' Scoring Attack

Special To The Review.

COLUMBIANA, Jan. 18.—Jimmy Wiand's Columbian basketballers built up a comfortable margin in the first three quarters of their battle last night with Scienceville on the local floor and coasted to a 33-23 triumph.

Scienceville started hitting the basket with an unusual degree of efficiency in the final frame but it was too late for any chance of victory.

Columbian led 16-7 at the half and 29-10 going into the last quarter. Unger and Fisher, local aces, were the high scorers. Unger netted five baskets from the floor and three fouls while Fisher garnered four field goals and also converted on three foul attempts.

Scienceville captured the preliminary game between the reserve outfits, 33-21.

THE BOOMERANG CLUE BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: While playing golf with Dr. Thomas, Bobby Jones discovers a man lying injured at the bottom of a chasm. The doctor goes for help, and while he is gone the man mutters, "Why didn't they ask Evans?" and dies. Bobby had promised to play the organ for his father, who is vicar at March-bolt, and when a pleasant stranger shows up he gladly relinquishes his vigil and skips for the church. But he has seen a photograph in the man's pocket, the face of which has a strange, haunting beauty.

Chapter Three ENTER FRANKIE

"Sorry, Dad," Bobby broke in, speaking cheerfully and breezily as was his habit, no matter what the subject. "Not my fault this time. I was keeping guard over a corpse."

"You were what?"

"Keeping guard over a blighter who stepped over the cliff. You know—the place where the chasm is, by the seventeenth tee. There was a bit of mist just then, and he must have gone straight on and over."

"Good heavens!" cried the Vicar. "What a tragedy! Was the man killed outright?"

No. He was unconscious. He died just after Dr. Thomas had gone off. But of course I felt I had to squat there—couldn't just push on and leave him. And then another fellow came along, so I passed the job of chief mourner on to him and legged it here as fast as I could."

The Vicar sighed.

"Oh, my dear Bobby!" he said. "Will nothing shake your deplorable callousness? It grieves me more than I can say. Here you have been brought face to face with death—sudden death. And you can joke about it! It leaves you unmoved. Everything—everything, however solemn, however sacred, is merely a joke to your generation."

Bobby shuffled his feet.

If his father couldn't see that of course you joked about a thing because you had felt badly about it—well, he couldn't see it! It wasn't the sort of thing you could explain. With death and tragedy about, you had to keep a stiff upper lip.

But what could you expect? Nobody ever 50 understood anything at all. They had the most extraordinary ideas.

"I expect it was the war," thought Bobby loyally. "It upset them and they never got straight again."

"Sorry, Dad," he said with a clear-eyed realization that explanation was impossible.

The Vicar felt sorry for his son—he looked so abashed; but he also felt ashamed of him. The boy had no conception of the seriousness of life. Even his apology was cheery and impenitent.

They moved towards the Vicarage, each making enormous efforts to find excuses for the other.

The Vicar thought, "I wonder when Bobby will find something to do?"

Bobby thought, "Wonder how much longer I can stick it down here?"

Yet they were both extremely fond of each other.

Bobby did not see the immediate sequel of his adventure. On the following morning he went up to town, to meet a friend who was thinking of starting a garage and who fancied that Bobby's co-operation might be valuable.

After settling things to everybody's satisfaction, Bobby caught the 11:30 train home two days later. He caught it, true, but only by a very narrow margin.

He arrived at Paddington when the clock announced the time to be 11:28, dashed down the subway, emerged on No. 3 platform just as the train was moving, and hurled himself at the first carriage he saw, heedless of indignant ticket-collectors and porters in his immediate rear.

Wrenching open the door, he fell in on hands and knees, picked himself up, the door was shut with a slam by an agile porter and Bobby found himself looking at the sole other occupant of the compartment.

It was a first-class carriage and in the corner facing the engine sat a dark girl smoking a cigarette. She had on a red skirt, a short green jacket and a brilliant blue beret, and despite a certain resemblance to an organ-grinder's monkey (she had long, sorrowful, dark eyes and a puckered-up face) she was distinctly attractive.

In the midst of an apology, Bobby broke off.

"Why, it's you, Frankie!" he said. "I haven't seen you for ages."

"Well, I haven't seen you. Sit down and talk."

Bobby grinned. "My ticket's the wrong color."

"That doesn't matter," said Frankie kindly. "I'll pay the difference for you."

"My manly indignation rises at the thought," said Bobby. "How could I let a lady pay for me?"

"It's about all we seem to be good for these days," said Frankie. "I'll pay the difference myself."

said Bobby heroically as a burly figure in blue appeared at the door from the corridor.

"Leave it to me," said Frankie.

She smiled graciously at the ticket-collector, who touched his hat as he took the piece of white cardboard from her and punched it.

"Mr. Jones has just come in to talk to me for a bit," she said. "That won't matter, will it?"

"That's all right, your ladyship. The gentleman won't be staying long, I expect." He coughed tactfully. "I shan't be round again till after Bristol," he added significantly.

"What can be done with a smile?" said Bobby as the official withdrew.

Lady Frances Derwent shook her head thoughtfully.

"I'm not so sure it's the smile," she said. "I rather think it's Father's habit of tipping everybody five shillings whenever he travels that does it."

"I thought you'd given up Wales for good, Frankie."

Frances sighed. "My dear, you know what it is. You know how mouldy parents can be. What with that, and the bathrooms in the state they are, and nothing to do and nobody to see—and people simply won't come to the country to stay nowadays! They say they're economizing and they can't go far. Well, I mean, what's a girl to do?"

Bobby shook his head, sadly recognizing the problem.

"However," went on Frankie, "after the party I went to last night, I thought even some couldn't be worse."

"What was wrong with the party?"

"Nothing at all. It was just like any other party, only more so. We had dinner at the Savoy, and we went on from there to the Marjorie, and we went on from there to the Bull Ring—I tell you, Bobby, Bobby fell in on hands and knees. It's not good enough."

BANDITS BIND WOMAN CLERK, ROB OHIO BANK

Two Young Robbers Escape With $1,000; Police Seek Clues

UNIONTOWN, O., Jan. 18.—Authorities turned today to northeastern Ohio's largest cities for a clue to the identity of two young robbers who taped the hands and feet of Alice Archer, 24, employee of the Union Savings & Loan Co., and escaped with $1,000 yesterday.

The men asked for change for a $10 bill. One of them pulled a pistol and ordered the woman to lie on the floor. They helped themselves to the cash. The girl was alone in the bank.
